Increased Development Along Metro Gold Line

The Pasadena Star News interviewed staff today about the upsurge in development on or near Metro Gold Line Stations, including the newly completed Del Mar Station. Staff reported that private development is progressing at a rapid pace at several Gold Line Stations that will bring several hundred new residential housing units within walking distance of stations, which will likely have a strong positive impact on future rail ridership. Systemwide, Metro currently owns 100 acres of property which are available for development purposes, 20 of which are now pending. Staff noted that the Exposition Light Rail Project is not expected to reach Culver City until 2010, yet plans are already being made for future development in the area. Additional joint development is also being planned on the Eastside extension of the Metro Gold Line at Chavez/Soto, 1st/Boyle and 1st/Soto. The story is expected to run this weekend.
