

Greater LA

Destination Crenshaw breaks ground

Hosted by Steve Chiotakis Mar. 02, 2020 Los Angeles

Listen 25 min

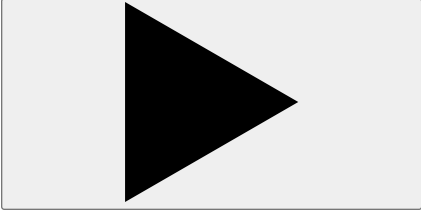

MORE

Views to the east from the upper level of the viewing deck at Sankofa Park, located where Crenshaw Blvd. and Leimert Blvd. split. Rendering courtesy of Perkins+Will.

In Leimert Park, Destination Crenshaw is a 1.3 mile-long open-air, linear museum that features 100 public artworks by primarily black artists. Construction began this past Saturday. Ironically, the project honors African Americans while property values skyrocket and white homebuyers move into the area.

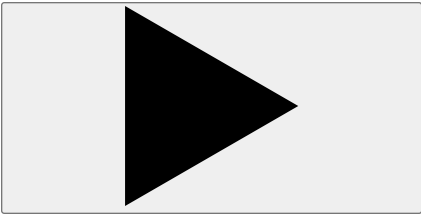

From this Episode:

Destination Crenshaw plays into fears about gentrification in LA

In Leimert Park, Destination Crenshaw is a 1.3 mile-long open-air, linear museum that features permanent and temporary art celebrating black life and culture.

8 min

Forget applying for jobs at Google, Facebook? College students stir up ‘techlash’

College students look to big tech as a destination to build their career.

10 min

Will Republicans take back Orange County on Super Tuesday?

Orange County turned blue two years ago, when Democrats won all four Republican-held Congressional districts.

6 min

Credits

Host:

Steve Chiotakis

Producers:

Christian Bordal, Jenna Kagel, Danielle Chiriguayo, Rebecca Mooney

More from Greater LA