

Arthur Leahy Named CEO of OCTA

- Starts Job in January

(Nov. 28) Arthur Leahy, the MTA's former executive officer for Transit Operations, has been selected as CEO of the Orange County Transit Authority. He begins his duties in mid-January.

According to a City News Service report, Leahy will replace former OCTA chief Lisa Mills, who resigned in July. Leahy currently is head of Metro Transit in Minneapolis, where he had served as CEO since 1996.

Leahy, who was among five finalists for the post, was chosen on an 11-0 vote of the OCTA Board, which also approved a $155,000 annual salary.
