Have you ever looked at a picture in your family's old photo album and wondered, "Who the heck is that?"

Well, that's what the Dorothy Peyton Gray Library and Archive wants to know about dozens of pictures in MTA's collection of historic photographs of Los Angeles transit and transportation workers.

The Library will conduct an "ID the Photo" open house on Wednesday, Dec. 18, from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. The Library is located on the 15th floor.

Many photographs donated to the Library have no identification or information associated with the people, places, events, and equipment depicted.

Librarian Matt Barrett is asking current and retired employees to help the Library "fill in the blanks" in preparation for a future digital archive, as well as for MTA's Museum project.

Barrett encourages employees to stop by the open house to enjoy refreshments, check out the reconfigured library space and help with photo identification.

Additional "ID the Photo" events will be scheduled in the Library and at other MTA locations in the near future.
