Radio Station Contest Winner Chris Limon Excited to Rock Out

- Assistant Manager of Wayside Systems was selected at random to win Lynyrd Skynyrd and Dodgers tickets

By JENNIE HARRIS

(June 20, 2007) Metro's Chris Limon paraded around his office wearing a crown and sash emblazoned "Jack FM Ordinary Listener of the Day" on Monday.

Along with the "fame," Limon received "fortune": two Lynyrd Skynyrd tickets, four Dodgers tickets, Jack FM T-shirts, guitar picks, key chains, bumper stickers, lollipops and an official Ordinary Listener of the Day certificate.

The listener-run radio station chose Limon at random. "They figure that anyone who registers is just ordinary. It doesn't matter if you're unordinary or whatever, you're still considered ordinary."

Limon wasn't expecting to win. He remembered his wife saying, "You're not going to win, but if you do, I win."

"There are no cash prizes, but the Lynyrd Skynyrd concert is something I'll never forget," said Limon. "When they said I won Lynyrd Skynyrd tickets I didn't care about nothing else."

Rock music is in his blood. When his mother was pregnant with him, she went to Led Zeppelin and Pink Floyd concerts.

The July 24 concert is at the Pacific Amphitheatre and Limon's tickets are front and center on the terrace level.

When did he know he was ordinary? "The day I woke up realizing I got to go to work because I'm married with children."
