Who pays for roads in Wisconsin?

Transportation is one of the biggest-ticket items for state and local government. The cost is high, and so is misunderstanding of who pays for what.

Taxpayers cover costs that should be borne by road users. Road subsidies push up tax rates, squeeze government services, and skew the market for transportation.

MYTH

Roads in Wisconsin “pay for themselves” through user fees: gas tax, tolls, and licensing.

The Wisconsin road lobby likes to pretend that users pay the cost of roads in Wisconsin: “Wisconsin has a history of funding its transportation system by charging the users of that system,” the road lobby’s Finding Forward coalition declares.

FACT

Roads in Wisconsin are heavily subsidized by taxpayers.

What the lobby and others espousing this view don’t emphasize is that this statement only applies to the 10 percent of the road network made up of state-owned highways. The full picture is much different. Between 2004 and 2008, roads in the state cost an average of $4.24 billion annually. Of this, $1.74 billion came from revenue sources unrelated to road use—primarily property and sales taxes—while another $600 million was borrowed.

So, even counting federal aid as user-based—which is generally but not always true—between 41 and 55 percent of road money, depending on how borrowing is repaid, comes from non-users.

The fact is, roads constitute one of the biggest tax burdens we face.

MYTH

Roads are being short-changed by diversion of user fees.

The highway lobby wants a state constitutional amendment devoting road-user fees for transportation. The governor has gone further, with a proposal to even bar these revenues from funding transportation via public transit.

FACT

The cash flowing into roads from taxpayers far outweighs user-based proceeds going to non-roads.

Each year roads consume $779 per Wisconsin household in non-user taxes. The comparable figures for user fees “diverted” to transit and other uses is $50 and $34, respectively.

Wisconsin could fully fund its roads by raising the gas tax by about 50 cents per gallon, or by imposing highway tolls, turning over more gas tax money to local government.

Regardless of new revenues, the state could cut costs for highways by reining in expensive new projects.

The fact is, until we cut costs or raise fees—or both—the big diversion is from taxpayers to roads, not the other way around.

Methodology

This report reflects state and local revenues and disbursements for roads in Wisconsin during the five year period from 2004 to 2008. Revenues were generated through highway user fees (fuel taxes, tolls and license fees), borrowing, non-user taxes and fees, and federal sources. Disbursements went toward capital improvements, debt service, and maintenance and services – the latter including such items as grass cutting, snow removal and planning.

Data used in this report was taken from Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) highway statistics publications. Several erroneous figures were adjusted based on discussions with the Wisconsin Department of Transportation (WisDOT).

Specific FHWA tables that were used in this report include:

1. Revenues Used by States for Highways (SF-1) for years 2004, 2005, 2006, 2007, and 2008.
2. Disposition of State Highway-User Revenues (SDF) for years 2004, 2005, 2006, 2007, and 2008.
3. Revenues Used by Local Governments for Highways (LGF-1) for years 2004, 2005, 2006, and 2008.
4. Disposition of Local Government Receipts from State and Local Highway Revenue (LDF) for years 2004, 2005, 2006, 2007, and 2008.
5. State Disbursements for Highways (SF-2) for years 2004, 2005, 2006, 2007, and 2008.
6. Local Government Disbursements for Highways (LGF-2) for years 2004, 2005, 2006, 2007, and 2008.
7. Local Government Funding For Highways – Summary (LGF-21) for year 2007.

Specific figures adjusted based on discussions with WisDOT staff include:

2008

- Miscellaneous state revenue for highways (Table SF-1) revised downward from $240,745,000 to $102,822,215.
- State motor fuel receipts for collection expenses (Table SDF) revised downward from $1,343,604,000 to $1,343,604.
- State motor vehicle receipts for collection expenses (Table SDF) revised from $0 to $70,331,684.

2007

- State motor vehicle receipts for collection expenses (Table SDF) revised from $0 to $75,245,512.

2006

- State motor vehicle receipts for collection expenses (Table SDF) revised from $0 to $74,824,891.

1/ This table summarizes local governments' receipts from motor-fuel taxes, motor-vehicle fees, special imposts on motor carriers, and tolls. This table includes receipts from State imposts that are transferred to local governments for distribution. See Tables LGF-21 and LGF-3B for details. Local government reporting is on a biennial basis with even-numbered years optional. This table is compiled from reports of State and local governments.

2/ Differences between amounts shown here and in the "Highway Statistics, 2004" Tables DF and SF-5A are caused by State delays in transferring revenues dedicated to local governments, and by local governments' reallocations of State funds. 3/ Estimated by FHWA.
